DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: on page 8 line 32, "the tow sheets" is believed as an error.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kataoka et al (US 5637382) in view of Japanese Patent Document 55-153393.

Kataoka teaches a flexible printed circuit board that is a copper coated laminate. The copper coated laminate is comprised of a polyimide film (14) and two copper layers (16) (Fig. 2).

The two copper layers (16) are respectively laminated to the surfaces of the polyimide film (14) without any adhesive (col 4 L 38-52).

Kataoka teaches only one polyimide film (14) between the copper layers.

The Japanese patent document 55-153393, teaches a flexible printed circuit board comprised of two metal clad layers and an adhesive layer.

The metal clad layer is comprised of a metal foil and an insulating layer, with the metal foil clad directed onto the insulating layer. The adhesive is placed between the two insulating layers, with the metal foils facing outward. The adhesive is thermosetting silicone resin material. Heat and pressure is applied to the clad layers to form a laminate.

The document is silent about the material used for the insulating layer.

In view of the prior art teachings, one skill in the art would choose polyimide to be the insulating film of the JP 55-153393 document because polyimide is well known to have high thermal stability and it is widely chosen to be used for various PCB substrates.

Applicant submitted the Japanese patent document 55-153393 without any English translation. The examiner obtained an oral translation from the Patent Office Translation Branch colleague. If Applicant feels the translation is in err, Applicant is encouraged to submit a full accurate translated document when respond to this office action.
